Online Peer Mentoring: Meeting The Unique Needs Of Non-Traditional Students

Tuesday, May 27 ~ 1:00-2:30pm (Eastern)

Once the live date has passed, this training will be available on demand.

Overview

Advanced technologies are moving peer mentoring into the virtual world, where students can have access to the support they need anytime and anywhere. As financial resources have become more scarce at many institutions at the same time, demands have become more acute; online peer mentoring has become more pervasive. In a genuine sense, online peer mentoring systems offer faculty, staff, and other professionals a way to do more with less while increasing retention and enhancing completion rates within the non-traditional student population. The evidence is clear: when done appropriately, online peer mentoring can provide colleges and universities with significant benefits in several key areas relevant to non-traditional students.

This webinar will cover the essential components of a successful online peer mentoring program designed to meet the needs of non-traditional students. We will look at the pros and cons of the various platforms that are available, how to use them effectively to develop and maintain supportive relationships that have all the features of face-to-face conferences, and concrete solutions to the problems that inevitably arise in an online environment. The focus will be on both the individual who is an online peer mentor and those responsible for overseeing the overall program. Also included will be opportunities for participant involvement through the use of case studies and real-time feedback via chat.

Objectives:

- Review the essential components of successful peer mentoring programs
- Explore evidence-based best practices in peer mentoring with non-traditional students
- Learn how to adapt those components and best practices to an online environment

Speaker(s)

"Online peer mentoring provides a surprisingly efficient and effective avenue for communicating productively with nontraditional students in a unique and personal way. In a very real sense, this is the future of peer mentoring, especially with adult students; as such, it is important those responsible know how to do it well."
